Question No. 96

Senator Ludwig asked the following question at the hearing on 25 May 2006:

- (a) During the period February - April 2001 was Coastwatch surveilling the waters between Indonesia and Christmas Island on a daily basis searching for Suspected Illegal Entry Vessels (SIEVs)?
- (b) If not, how regularly was Coastwatch patrolling the route to Christmas Island during this time?
- (c) Or were surveillance patrols only initiated when intelligence reports indicated a SIEV had departed?
- (d) Did Coastwatch receive any intelligence reports concerning the departure of the boat which was codenamed Gelantipy by DIMA prior to its sighting in the waters off Christmas Island on 27 March 2001? If so, can details of those reports be made available?

The answer to the honourable senator's question is as follows:

- (a) Coastwatch undertakes regular wide area surveillance on the basis of threat and risk assessments. Surveillance becomes more focussed when credible reports of a specific threat, such as a SIEV, are received. Provision of flight paths and patrol frequency could compromise future operational effectiveness and as such it would be inappropriate to provide such details.
- (b) Refer to answer (a).
- (c) Refer to answer (a).
- (d) In accordance with normal security conventions, Coastwatch will neither confirm nor deny the existence of intelligence reports.

 - (b) If not, why not?

- 5)
 - (a) Has the AFP, either through its own agency or through Indonesian police or other contacts, taken steps to validate the coordinates of the SIEV-X rescue contained in the North Jakarta Harbourmaster's report of 24 October 2001 (i.e. that the SIEV-X survivors were rescued by the 'Indah Jaya Makmur' on 20 October 2001 at position 07 40 00S / 105 09 00E) which was broadcast on the SBS current affairs television program 'Dateline' on 22 May 2002 and 17 July 2002?

- (a) The AFP is unaware of any intelligence reports, received from, or passed to, other Australian authorities.
 - (b) Refer to answer 1 a).
- 2)
- (a) There is insufficient evidence available at this time to prosecute any person for organising the venture involving the vessel known as SIEV 6. - (a) A North Jakarta Harbourmaster was spoken to by Australian officials in the days following the loss of the SIEV X. Those Australian officials viewed pages of the Harbourmaster's report dated 22 October 2001. AFP officers subsequently obtained a copy of this document. Australian Officials also viewed an Indonesian National Police (INP) report dated 24 October 2001 that is believed to be the document referred to in the SBS 'Dateline' program aired on 22 May 2002. AFP officers requested a copy of the original document be provided by the INP of the report dated 24 October 2001. INP has advised that they are unable to locate the document.
 - (b) Consideration was given to obtaining the best evidence and as a result INP was requested by AFP Jakarta Post, to locate and obtain the original INP document. INP reported that they had exhausted their enquiries and had been unable to locate the requested document. The document in its original form was not deemed essential in the pursuance of prosecutions against the venture organisers.

5)

- (a) The AFP has taken steps in an attempt to validate the coordinates at position 07 40 00S / 105 09 00E as the position where the SIEV X survivors were located.
- (b) Refer to answer 5 a).
- (c) The position was stated on the INP report and is assumed to have been obtained from the Captain and crew of the rescue vessel. The evidence suggests that the coordinates are a rough estimate at best.
- (d) Calculations made by Australian officials were based on the estimated speed, distance, time of departure, delays and intended destination of SIEV X. Estimated speed, time of rescue, reported point of rescue, distance travelled and arrival time of the rescue vessel with survivors at Maura Baru.
